Shoppers Offered Free Trolley and Bus Rides Today For Merchants' Annual After-Thanksgiving Bargains

SLASHED PRICES AWAITING THRIFTY AT GIGANTIC SALE

Taxicabs Wait Call to Take Buyers to Town and Back for Cost of Single One-Way Trip.

Crowds of Georgians, masses of Atlantans, throngs of shoppers anxious to buy honest goods at prices far below normal, are converging upon the shopping district of the city of Atlanta today to avail themselves of the thousands of real bargains being offered by Atlanta merchants in The Constitution's Second Annual After-Thanksgiving Sales Event Extraordinary.

Turkey and cranberry day is over and many a family will have Thanksgiving "left-overs" for the remainder of the week, but the merchants of Georgia's capital want to stress that the bargains you'll see today on their shelves and counters are not left-overs—the merchandise is new, brand-new, and the best that can be bought for the money.

Free Rides.

There are free rides waiting for men and women shoppers who want to go downtown between 9 and 10 o'clock this morning on a street car, bus or shoppers' bus, and taxicabs are waiting your call to take you downtown and back for the cost of only a single one-way trip.

The Constitution's official hosts and hostesses are waiting in the stores to give away free theater tickets, free meals at excellent restaurants and fine accommodations at Atlanta's hotels.

The hotel accommodations are for out-of-town shoppers who wish to stay overnight in Atlanta. Among the hotels co-operating are the Ansley, Atlanta, Biltmore, Briarcliff, Clermont, Cox-Ca Iton, Georgian Terrace, Hampton, Henry Grady, Imperial, Jefferson, Kimball House, Piedmont, 551 Ponce de Leon, the Robert Fulton hotel and the Winecoff.

All business in Atlanta has united to make this Atlanta's greatest bargain day. To those shoppers from out-of-town the bus companies are offering low round-trip fares.

Prosperity Hums.

Prosperity is humming in Atlanta and in Georgia, and crowds will prove it today as they launch the official Christmas shopping season by purchasing merchandise offered at especially low prices in the After-Thanksgiving Sales Event Extraordinary.

By buying today you save, because when this big Constitution-sponsored sale is over, the prices will jump back to normal!

Merchants here have said that

Jean Parker Bares Trial Separation

Have Been Parted for Six Months, Divorce-Bound Actress Says.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—Actress Jean Parker, who announced a few days ago that she was going to divorce her New York newspaperman husband, George MacDonald, revealed today that they have been separated for six months on a "trial basis."

Miss Parker, who was born Mae Green, married MacDonald in March, 1936.

"The fact that Mr. MacDonald must necessarily remain in New York and I in Hollywood made for an unhappy marriage," Miss Parker said.

Here are statistics on the former Deer Lodge, Mont., girl:

Height, 5 feet, 3 inches.

Weight, 105 pounds.

Brown hair and blue-green eyes.

Some of Miss Parker's best known pictures include, "You Can't Buy Everything"; "Raspberries and the Empress"; "The Arkansas Traveler" and "Murder in the Fleet."

He Wanted Plumber, Not An Ambulance

MIAAMI, Fla., Nov. 23.—(AP)—A call to police told of a "dead man" lying in the street.

When a squad car and an ambulance rolled up, the prone one cried:

"Send that blasted ambulance away and get me a plumber. I'm holding together a broken water pipe."

Seeing-Eye Dogs Get Free Plane Passage

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Seeing-eye dogs, used to guide blind persons, henceforth will ride free of charge on United Air Line planes.

SPECIAL SERVICE MERGES GEORGIA METHODIST UNITS

Three Branches Merged as Nearly 1,000 Ministers and Laymen Participate in Ceremony.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT. Complete union of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant Church, was formally declared by the Methodist conference at Wesley Memorial church yesterday morning. There was not one dissenting voice raised against the merger as 364 ministers and 335 laymen of the three church bodies stood and, with uplifted hands, vowed loyalty to the Methodist church as now constituted.

Speaking at the annual turkey dinner at the Warm Springs Infantile Paralysis Foundation, the Chief Executive said that if the war still was going on in the spring he hoped he could get back down here "for a shortened holiday, anyway."

To 350 guests and patients, some or wheel chairs, others on cots, the President recalled that when he left Warm Springs last April he had told persons at the station he would be back in the fall "if we don't have a war."

"Well," he asserted, "we had a war. We have a war today. Columns were written about what I meant and I meant just what I said. We have a war, but I managed to get down here this fall."

Then, for a moment the President's listeners caught their breaths and finally gasped with relief, he added:

"You know, I'm in favor of war, very much in favor of war—the kind of war we've been conducting here at Warm Springs. This kind of war is spreading all over the country—a war against the crippling of men and women and especially children."

As the congregation bowed in prayer, three ministers ascended the speaker's rostrum and clasped hands. They were Bishop Decell, of Birmingham, representing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Bishop Frederick T. Keeny, of Miami, representing the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Dr. W. M. Hunton, of Atlanta, president of the Georgia Methodist Protestant Church.

Thus were the three branches absorbed into the new north Georgia conference of the Methodist church and the unification begun at Kansas City became complete.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was immediately celebrated following the declaration of union, participated in by nearly 1,000 ministers and laymen.

Business procedure of the session yesterday morning was enlivened by the amendment offered by the Rev. John F. Yarbrough,

ACCUSED ACQUITTED,ACCUSER ARRESTED

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

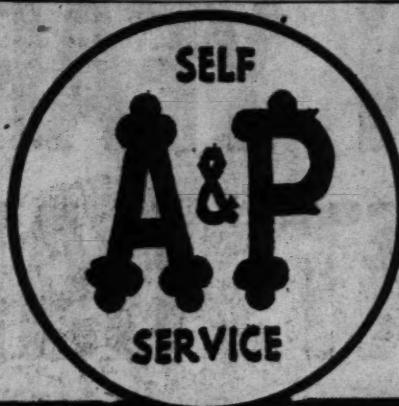

DUBLIN, Ga., Nov. 23.—Wash James and Charlie Daniel, negroes, were acquitted by a superior court jury here yesterday in less than five minutes, following a full day of testimony on charges of armed robbery, and their accuser, Genie Scott, also a negro, was arrested on perjury charges before the jury finished filing from the box. Defense counsel called as witnesses a deputy sheriff, the jailer, a temporary court bailiff and acting deputy, two patrolmen, and the chief and former chief of the city police force. The burden of whose testimony tended to show Scott made conflicting statements in seeking their aid in the apprehension of the Daniels.

EARTHQUAKE RUINS TURKISH VILLAGES

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 23.—(P)—Eighteen bodies were recovered today from ruined villages of east Antolia, where hundreds were feared killed by a series of violent earthquakes.

The government and Red Cross sheltered tents, food and medical supplies for the homeless and injured in the western part of Turkey. Lack of communications with the crippled area hampered relief work.

Six villages were reported leveled by the shocks.

Pastors Here Pray for Peace In Thanksgiving Day Services

Majority of Ministers Preach on Contrast Between Europe and America and Why Residents of United States Should Be Grateful.

The ministers of Atlanta sent up a powerful prayer for peace throughout the world yesterday as they led their congregations in special Thanksgiving Day services—through which the theme of "Be Ye Thankful" was predominant.

From a "sample poll" of sermons on Turkey Day, it appeared that the majority of pastors talked principally about the contrast between Europe and America and why the residents of this country should be thankful turbulent conditions of the old countries do not harass this nation.

Need for Courage.
This note was struck by Dr. Theodore S. Will as he preached before his flock at All Saints' Episcopal church during the morning.

"Don't be the Pollyanna type, but when the world is full of tribulations, be of good cheer," he declared as he centered his sermon around this thought.

He warned his hearers to "keep their chins up" in the face of all adversities and to overcome their personal trials with courage.

Dr. Will referred to the distressing situation in the world today, adding that the people must be courageous.

Though encompassing the same idea, the Rev. Gerald Y. Smith at the Peachtree Christian church took a little different tack in his address.

Should Be Thankful.

Most people, he asserted, are

Mr. Ingram retired 17 years ago after more than 40 years with the utility. He made his home here most of that time. He was a Mason and a member of the Holy Trinity Episcopal church, Decatur.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Porter Ingram, of Jacksonville, and William Ingram, of Decatur; three daughters, Mrs. Julia Ingram Hazzard, of Cranford, N.J.; Miss Elizabeth Ingram, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Mrs. William E. Chambers, of West Point, N.Y.; a sister, Mrs. A. W. Hauer, of Columbus, Ga., and four grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by A. S. Turner & Sons.

HOPKINS CREATES TRADE-AID GROUP

Will Work With States in Effort to Remove Commercial Barriers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins launched a campaign today aimed at removing barriers to trade among the states.

He created a committee to cooperate with the council of state governments in tackling such problems as differing taxes, licenses and regulations on motor trucks, plant and livestock quarantines at state borders, and gasoline taxing ports at state boundaries.

Paul T. Truitt, a special assistant to Hopkins, was selected to be chairman of the group, and the state, labor, agriculture and justice departments, the federal works agency and the national resources committee were invited to appoint representatives on it.

Similar Thanksgiving services were conducted by the pastors in churches in every section of the city, some of them being early programs and others being held later in the morning or in the afternoon. Pastors reported that they had good attendance.

GALLOGLY HEARING TO BE DECEMBER 13

Bail Plea Postponed Because Attorney Could Not Attend.

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 23.—(AP)—The court of criminal appeals today set December 13 for arguments in the appeal of Richard Gray Gallogly, youthful Georgia fugitive, seeking release on bail pending adjudication of his legal fight to escape extradition.

Presiding Judge F. L. Hawkins announced the setting after a telephone conversation with State Senator Jess Martin, of Fort Worth, chief of Gallogly's counsel, who was unable to appear yesterday, when the case was called, due to an illness in his family.

Gallogly, life-terminer who fled from Georgia and surrendered in Dallas, is in jail in the north Texas city. District Judge Grover Adams refused to grant him bail after Governor W. Lee O'Daniel had ordered his extradition.

Herschel Smith, an assistant attorney general of Georgia, announced he would return to his home state after Judge Hawkins made the new setting. If he does not return Lloyd W. Davison, Texas state's attorney in the criminal appeals court, will argue that Gallogly's case is not subject to bail.

YOUNG SALESMAN IS ROBBED OF $1.05

Boy Saves $1.85 by Putting It in Shoe.

Twelve-year-old Harold Ragan, 730 Glass street, was thankful yesterday for $1.85 which he stuck in his shoe shortly before he was held up late Wednesday afternoon by a negro man and robbed of $1.05.

The youth, who has a magazine route, was making his rounds Wednesday afternoon when the negro stopped his car near the corner of Glass street and Bankhead avenue, came up to the boy and told him to give up his money, he reported.

Harold said it was the first time he had ever been held up, and was so scared that afterward he ran all the way home. Police found no trace of the negro. The youngster is the son of the Rev. C. D. Ragan, pastor of the Bellwood Baptist church.

PRISONER INJURES POLICE TURNKEY

J. G. Ergle Receives Badly Gashed Leg.

J. G. Ergle, turnkey at police headquarters, was treated at Grady hospital yesterday for a badly gashed leg which was reported to have been cut when he was shoved against a steel cot by John Vinson, a prisoner.

Vinson was arrested on a charge of being drunk and was lodged in the fourth floor bull pen. Later a fight started and Ergle was injured when he attempted to break it up, reports said. An additional charge of disorderly conduct was placed against Vinson.

Christmas Gift

Few communities comparable to Atlanta are so blessed as to be able to report a "Christmas gift," of $450,000, all assigned to charity or to causes devoted to the reduction of human suffering.

The Joseph B. Whitehead Foundation, in announcing assignment of its funds for the coming Christmas season, displayed a wisdom and, at the same time, a degree of human sympathy which adds much to the value of the giving. When such gifts can be made with a background of so much genuine feeling for the need, the value of the donations is doubled.

In establishing a professorship at Emory University School of Medicine the Foundation opened, perhaps, the greatest potentiality for benefit to humanity of all its benefactions.
There is no activity, of today, which is doing more, or is in greater need of support, for the improvement of the human race than the great medical schools, the laboratories of medical research and the hospitals. Yet, to man the research centers and to bring adequately trained men to the service of the hospitals, the first essential is properly staffed and equipped medical schools. Thus the value of the professorship established as the "Joseph B.
Whitehead Chair of Surgery," at Emory school.

As for the general gifts for charity, all that can be said is they contribute, much, to the hope for better conditions of life in the Atlanta of the future. For years those agencies whose goal is the welfare of the less fortunate among us have struggled with a task that appeared almost infinite. Now, with such gifts as these, new hope awakes that the day may be nearer than optimism has imagined, when human helplessness may become a negligible factor in the circumstances of Atlanta life.

This Really Counts

Reports from public employment agencies, whether state-wide or affecting only one country, have real value in showing the speed with which the unemployment problem is being solved. That it is nowadays moving toward solution is evident. More jobs are becoming available for those willing and competent to fill them and the total of idle workers in the nation is decreasing.

Job placement agencies must, by the very nature of things, accept every opportunity to find work for those seekers after employment whose names are on their lists. This means they fill, broadly speaking, two types of jobs.
Permanent and temporary. Thus it becomes necessary, if any conception of the reduction in employment is sought, to consider chiefly those placed in permanent positions.

As an example, the report for Fulton and DeKalb counties for the week ending November 18, made by the Georgia State Employment Service, shows a total of 151 jobs found, with 82 of these permanent positions and the other 67 involving workers needed for less than one month. It is easily seen that, in any computation for permanent gains, only the 82 steady jobs can be considered.

This is not to say that the 67 temporary jobs were not valuable and gladly accepted. To a man, or woman, seeking work so that necessities of life may be earned, any honest job is welcome. Even though it only be for an hour or two, it is better than nothing.

But, for real results in the war on unemployment it is the permanent jobs that count.
It is, therefore, indicative of a much better condition in the labor market when 56 per cent of the positions found are lasting in character.
At that rate, unemployment, with all its atten-tendant problems of relief and human suffering, will rapidly decrease. Which is what economists really mean when they speak of returning prosperity.

Tired of being told of these super-tough football elevens, the skeptics society plans to weigh up some wildcats and arrange a date.

All the possible theories have been explored except that the bomb wasn't meant for Adolf personally, but for after-dinner orators as a class.

If we're all as still as mice, keep out of arguments among foreigners, and look both ways at intersections, we may be counted in the 1940 census.

Another of those booms that is bad for us,

mentally, physically and spiritually, is on the way, and will find us ready to resist anything but temptation.

With New York's Tammany back in the gravy, perhaps the Flushing Fair ought to reopen as the world of yesterday.

Another Doorway

That the expanding air traffic of Atlanta is rapidly growing too large to pass safely through the single entry at Candler Field has for long been evident. Thus the announcement of actual start on plans to construct a supplemental airport on the site of what was once Camp
Gordon comes none too soon.

It is significant that, simultaneous with this announcement, came the news that Pennsylvania Central Air Lines is reported to have contracted for 12 new passenger planes, to place in the proposed Atlanta-Pittsburgh service. If this report is correct, that will be just those many more commercial planes seeking landing and hangar facilities at Candler Field.

Already, with the growth of commercial flying, private pilots are finding it risky to use Candler Field. Such an airport, or any airport for that matter, can accommodate only a given amount of traffic with safety. Beyond that limit, the danger involved in landings and take-offs becomes too great.

It is proposed to use the projected new field
at Camp Gordon for private flyers, principally.
A survey is now in progress there and, when this is completed within the next 10 days, the findings will be submitted for approval of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. It is then proposed, with the aid of WPA, to construct the new field as rapidly as possible.

The need for an additional field to serve Atlanta is pressing, no one will deny.
The proposed site is relatively level, is reasonably accessible to the city and is probably as good a location as can be secured.

Further, the creation of a second field will go far toward confirming the already generally held belief that Atlanta is the hub of southeastern air commerce, just as she is the center of rail transportation for this part of the country.

Tragic Reassurance

Ever since the days immediately preceding the declaration by Britain of the new war against Germany, large areas of England have been dotted with those huge barrage balloons intended to provide a protective network against possible enemy air raiders.

It is estimated that over London alone approximately 1,000 of these great blimps float, while fleets of relative size are to be seen over other British cities and industrial areas. Over any area, in fact, which might be considered a legitimate target for enemy air bombs.

These balloons float, on the end of cables attached, at the ground, to huge motor trucks, at heights varying from a few hundred yards to four miles. By a system of connecting cables
a huge net is thus maintained in the air.

There has been much argument, pro and con, as to the actual value of the barrage balloons under the test of real attack. This test has not yet come but a recent dispatch from London indicates the barrage has, in an advert-ent try-out, fulfilled the claims of its inventors.

A British civil aircraft accidentally flew into the barrage network. It was brought to the ground and its crew of two killed.

Tragic, yet in its proof of value of the barrage, reassuring to Britain.

There is one informative word in the dispatch. It is stated the ill-fated plane was a "civil" aircraft. In the early weeks of the war only war planes were allowed to use the paths of the sky above Britain. Regulations must have been lifted, to some extent, now, if a civil aircraft is permitted in the air at all.

English Culture in War

The old saying about an ill wind bids fair to apply in great measure in present-day England.
The European war, it appears, may have a beneficial effect on the writing and the reading in that country.

For many years foreign critics have scored English literature as being too verbose. Now, the need to conserve paper may result in shorter books and the often-urged pruning of words may thus come about. On the reading side, publishers anticipate a boom during war days.

They point out that the long evenings, when cities are blacked out for possible air raids and when all good citizens are supposed to be at home, may bring about a veritable revival of reading. Naturally, the more leisure in which to read—the more books sold.

In the field of painting, England is doing well, despite the conflict. The Contemporary Art Society has arranged the first of war-time exhibitions, at Oxford, while another exhibition has been planned for London. A series of concerts is also planned for the National Gallery and the Old Vic Dramatic School, a famous institution, has announced its intention to reopen.

The war goes on—but so does culture. The interest in literature, painting and music in such trying times as the present is a tribute to the character of the English people.

Editorial of the Day

A NEW CURB ON WAR ZONE TRAVEL
(From The Philadelphia Enquirer.)

If the neutrality act is to serve its whole purpose as a safeguard against the involvement of this country in the European war, its enforcement has to be adjusted to meet changing conditions and developing needs. Thus we find the State Department issuing new regulations, to supplement those put out only two weeks ago, for Americans who may be permitted to travel in combat areas proclaimed under the act.

By the new rules holders of American pas-ports who are required to travel in combat zones can no longer merely "proceed in accordance with the authorizations and subject to the restrictions noted on such passports," as the announcement of November 6 set forth. They must now have their passports endorsed as valid for "one specific journey" into or through combat areas.

If this additional tightening of travel regulations implies a further surrender of rights by American citizens they can find comfort in the fact that the complex neutrality rules have as their object the preservation of this country from war; and in the assurance that, unlike the people of totalitarian countries, they stand to get full restoration of their privileges as free men when the war is over.

Another of those booms that is bad for us,

THE CONSTITUTION, ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1939.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

STRICTLY THEATRICAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—If Paul Vories McNutt celebrates Thanksgiving paper mache turkey, drink cold tea out of gilded copper wine cups, and place no chairs on the side of the table facing the audience. At least, after the last fortnight's doings, it's difficult to conceive of the brash Hoosier at any but a strictly theatrical feast.

In a strenuous burst of activity, the McNutt stagehands have crowded Washington with scenery representing "The Start of a Bandwagon"—a political drama of unfailing interest. You do not have to look very close, however, to see that the backdrops are just backdrops, or to notice the netting between the leaves of trees, under which the hero says good-bye to his dear ones before departing on the long journey to the White House.

SCENERY, SCENERY! There is, for example, the matter of the Cosmos Club, at which Candidate McNutt is supposed to have charmed the New Deal birds off their exclusive bough. The dinner was arranged by Harper Fowler, an able teacher of the law whom McNutt placed in Indiana University Law School. When McNutt came to Washington to set up his candidate's headquarters at the Security Administration, he brought Fowler along as a contact man with liberal groups.

Fowler was the ostensible giver of the dinner, for which a quantity of human window-dressing was imported, in the persons of the president of Indiana University, the dean of Indiana Law School and the acting president of Louisiana University. Members of the New Deal group were invited a long way ahead, and attended largely out of curiosity. The bright particular star among those present was Thomas G. Corcoran, popularly supposed to be the ace New Dealer of them all. Corcoran left at 9 p.m., and the others who stayed heard only desultory conversation, punctuated with McNutt's professions of New Deal faith. Following the dinner, the McNutt forces put the story about that the New Dealers, who used to speak unpleasantly of the "Hoosier Hitler," had become strongly McNutt-minded.

The story was utterly unfounded, as are the numerous similar stories about the warm feelings entertained for McNutt by persons as various as Justice Felix Frankfurter and John L. Lewis. These stories are part of the scenery.

Part of the scenery also was McNutt's expedition to Hyde Park, where he appeared in rather lonely splendor at the cornerstone laying of the President's new library. Actually, the entire cabinet and a good many other local dignitaries were invited to attend this chilly ceremony. As the President intimated that the invitations were not meant to be compelling, everyone else went to a football game, or found some other way of passing the autumn afternoon. But not McNutt. He hastened to Hyde Park, and, sitting on the rostrum, gave the impression that he was the special object of presidential favor.

WAIT AWHILE All this is smart stuff—well-set "springs to catch conies." Any prospective candidate is justified, of course, in attempting a little coney-catching if he can bring it off successfully. The trouble with McNutt is that his springs are not very well hidden.

Fowler and one or two of his other friends peddle McNutt as a staunch liberal, pooh-poohing such incidents as the Terre Haute strike and the foundation of the 2 per cent club as mere follies of an ardent youth. The round, practical Frank McHale, McNutt manager-in-chief, simultaneously offers McNutt to the tough politicians and the rich fat cats as a man after their own peculiar hearts. McNutt is trying to be all things to all men. Shortly before the Cosmos Club dinner, he spoke to the Business Advisory Council, and, if the McNutt supporters are to be credited, he impressed the business leaders just as favorably as the New Dealers.

The McNutt candidacy is enormously well-heeled, through the 2 per cent clubs and in other, more mysterious ways. Recently McNutt has made a couple of journalistic converts, who will be useful to him. With Lowell Mellett, head of the National Emergency Council, and one or two other men around the President, McNutt has useful connections. McHale takes admirable care of the business end. There is no doubt at all that McNutt is a powerful political factor, and a man to watch. But, between this and the assertion of his supporters, that "the President has decided not to run and chosen McNutt to succeed him," there is a tremendous gap. It will be wise to wait and see how far McNutt gets in his presentation of "The Start of a Bandwagon." This capricious playlet has an occasional habit of turning into "Whipping a dead horse."

Puck

Was Right.

Grand old Bill Shakespeare has a line to fit any circumstance. The fear is growing that, when the great Atlanta premiere of that picture version of "Gone With the Wind" finally rolls around on the calendar, the most opposite quotation will be those words of Puck, "What fools these mortals be."

There is, for instance, that ball to be held at the auditorium on the evening of December 14. Tickets, it is reported, are all sold, to the utmost capacity of the place. None save ticket holders can possibly be admitted.

Inside, center of attraction, will be Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh, Leslie Howard, Olivia De Havilland and others of the cast.

Outside will be a mob, how great and how uncontrollable nobody can foresee. It is certain, however, it will be tremendous and demanding. For Gable and Leigh and the others will have to enter the auditorium. That mob will fight to get as close as humanly possible to the stars.

Then'll be police, all available. There'll be firemen and units of the National Guard, to handle traffic, to try and keep order and to control the crowd.

If it was my responsibility, I'd have all available ambulances parked somewhere handy, too. They may be needed.

Then, the Premiere.

The following night, December 15, some 1,400 or 1,500 people, who have already paid their $10 per seat, will witness the premiere showing of the film at Loew's Grand theater.

Again, there will be mob outside, on Peachtree. With a repetition of the problem around the auditorium, of the night before.

Go by the Grand, today. There is a box office, a special one, open inside the lobby where reserved seats for the later showings of the film are being sold. Patient lines of would-be customers extend through the lobby, down the street and around the corner.

People are standing in that line for hours, hoping to reach the box office before all the seats for the first week or two are gone. Some who have watched tell me that women have burst into tears of nervous excitement when they have, at last, procured their tickets.

All of which, both actual and forecast, seems to be hollow, over any picture, or under any circumstances. Humanly foolish, perhaps, but still foolish.

Without detracting from the achievement of Margaret Mitchell in writing the story, and without any advance hintlement of the picture itself it is, after all, neither more nor less than a talking, motion picture. Undoubtedly excellent entertainment and to be seen, by all means, if one can gain admission. But, if one can't gain admission, surely nothing to get emotional about. Don't forget that, before the picture is finally relegated to the dust of the archive shelves, everybody in Atlanta, in Georgia and in America will have been given plenty of

BANDWAGON VOTE? GALLUP SAYS 'NO'

Finds No Evidence of Polls' Influencing Voters to Fall in Line.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, points to possible danger in public opinion polls because he believes that poll results, when made public, influence voters to fall into line on the popular side of an issue.

This argument, popularly known as the "bandwagon" theory, is brought up in nearly every election campaign.

During its four years of survey work in which polls have been conducted on over 1,000 questions, the American Institute of Public Opinion has been unable to find any evidence of bandwagon movements among the ranks and file of voters.

In fact, out of 45 issues on which the Institute has kept trends of opinion by means of repeated surveys, the trend has been downward in two out of every three instances.

Last May the Institute found that Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, was the 1940 choice of over half of Republican voters expressing a preference in a survey. He was more than three times as popular as his two nearest rivals, Senator Vandenberg and Senator Taft. According to the bandwagon theory, Dewey's popularity should have increased steadily from that point on as voters flocked to his side. Actually the opposite happened. His popularity declined steadily, while that of Senator Vandenberg and Senator Taft increased.

their regular selling price. The government makes up the difference to the merchant. Do you approve or disapprove of this plan?"

The vote of those with opinions was:

Approve 70%
Disapprove 30%

A relatively small proportion of voters (12 per cent) said they had no opinion.

Further discussion of the plan, and its success or failure as it is tried out on a larger scale, would obviously have a bearing on future opinion regarding this issue. But at the moment it seems clear that the idea involved in the plan is popular.

It is considerably more popular among Democratic voters in the survey than among Republicans. Southern competition with Egyptian cotton was placed at a minimum. "Egypt is trying to stop raising cotton. They have a good grade but would rather raise rice. As soon as government irrigation projects make rice growing practical the cotton production will vanish. India is producing cotton in large quantities but the quality is very poor. We have nothing to fear in foreign cotton competition."

Making an intensive study of social legislation in New Zealand, the former representative has concluded that it is a failure. "The people are taxed to death by the government which is now finding it necessary to take over the land and the industries. The people are disgusted with it. They are moving toward pure socialism and ruining what might be a fine country in the process."

MOLOTOFF'S WIFE RELIEVED OF JOB

Fishing Commissar To Be Transferred.

MOSCOW, Nov. 23.—(P)—Soviet Russia's only woman commissar, Paulina Zhemchuzhina, head of the fishing industry and wife of Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, has been released from her job "to be transferred to another one," it was announced tonight.

Many foreign observers said they thought the action looked like a demotion, at least, but they were unable definitely to interpret the announcement.

The brief announcement over the Soviet radio failed to give further details and did not mention the post to which she is being transferred.

Food Stamps in Birmingham Called $1,000,000 Stimulant

More Than $250,000 Turned Into Private Channels Since Plan Was Inaugurated in City in August; 36,000 Persons Helped.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 23.—(P)—The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation's food stamp plan has turned more than $250,000 into private trade channels since it began operating here August 1, J. C. Lettice, administrator, revealed tonight.

"Only abuses on the part of clients and grocers can halt operation of the plan, which would mean $1,000,000 extra business to Birmingham grocers each year," Lettice said, pointing out that the plan also served to stimulate trade.

Today 36,000 persons, certified for relief by the Department of Public Welfare, receive $2 worth of blue stamps, exchangeable for designated surplus foods, at grocery stores, each month.

In October, the number receiving the stamps was 88 per cent of the total certified for relief, and slightly less than the number receiving the stamps in September.

Lettice said that in order to be eligible for stamps any month, a client must have returned by the 15th of the preceding month the empty folder he received the month before. Thus the October decline was attributed to the number failing to return empty folders received in August.

Birmingham is the only southern city where the plan is in effect and here only the blue stamps are distributed, good only for surplus foods.

Most independent grocers exchange the stamps with wholesalers who deposit them in Birmingham banks. Chain stores deposit them directly. Ninety-five per cent of the stamps go through the banks, but they may be cleared through the auditing office of the FSCC. The banks make no charge for exchange.

U. D. C. DISLIKES STATUE OF JEFFERSON DAVIS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 23.—(P)—The Alabama United Daughters of the Confederacy tonight described as a "monstrosity" a statue of Jefferson Davis, only Confederate president, designed for the lawn of the Alabama state capitol.

The statue was conceived by Frederick C. Hibbard, Chicago sculptor, and shows Davis—according to the Montgomery U. D. C.—"wearing an outmoded frock coat" and leaning on a cross.

VITAMIN VIEWED AS PREVENTATIVE OF SOME INSANITY

Extreme Nervousness Also Controlled; Atlanta Physicians' Papers Are Read at Meeting.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 23.—(P)—The eating of a common vitamin which can be purchased in pills at the corner drug store was described today as a treatment for extreme nervousness and a possible preventative of some forms of insanity.

The vitamin, known as B-one, is "not a cure-all" for nervous disorders, Dr. James A. Willie, of Oklahoma City, Okla., declared in a report before the Southern Medical Association. However, it has already proven effective in the quick treatment of a number of physical and mental disorders.

In one case a person who had developed a psychosis with hardening of the arteries of the brain "cleared up miraculously" on a high vitamin B-one treatment, he said.

It is also used frequently in the treatment of chronic alcoholism when individuals do not get enough food or do not get enough vitamin B-one to enable their food to be digested properly. Dr. Willie declared, and as a result develop mild forms of insanity with hallucinations, or delirium tremens.

Three papers by Atlantans were on today's program. Dr. David Henry Poer reported on post-operative use of hormones and vitamins in thyroid cases. Drs. Murdock Equeen and Frank Neuffer told of the removal of a rare tumor and Dr. James Lee Pittman and Dr. Earl Floyd presented a paper on "kidney salvage."

Listed as leaders in discussion of various papers were numerous Atlanta doctors, including Marion C. Pruitt, Calvin Sandison, Richard Wilson, M. Hines Roberts, Roy R. Kracke and William R. Minnich. Dr. Robert R. Greenblatt, of Augusta, was another discussion leader.

The Equeen-Neuffer paper dealt with chondroma of the larynx, a cartilaginous, non-malignant growth so rare that a British authority as late as 1925 had been able to find only 62 cases recorded.

The case reported in this paper was that of 56-year-old landscape gardener who apparently had had a progressive chondroma for several years. At first a supposed "cigarette cough" was the only symptom but gradually shortness of breath and heart irregularities were noted. When he finally was brought to the hospital he was near death from strangulation.

In a swiftly performed operation the entire "voice box" was removed, disclosing presence of the hard tumor about the size of an unshelled pecan. Rapid recovery was noted and the patient was reported back at work and apparently healthy two months after the operation.

Pittman and Floyd reported on several cases, of types often treated by removal of an entire kidney, in which injured or infected kidneys had returned to normal after only "conservative" surgery.

New Healing Power Found For Sulfanilamide Crystals

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 23.—(P)—Sulfanilamide crystals, sprinkled on cuts like salt on a steak, were described by two St. Louis, Mo., specialists tonight as a newly-discovered agent in "far-reaching advancement" in the treatment of compound fractures.

The wound could be closed after the crystals had been sprinkled on it, which explained Dr. J. Albert Key and Dr. Thomas H. Burford, was not only important in civil life where injuries from automobile accidents were becoming more frequent, but even more important in military surgery.

"This method," the St. Louis doctors said, "is the most important addition to our treatment of to estimates of the Engineering News-Record. The wave of plant expansion has lifted industrial building for the first 10 months to $220,000,000 compared with $152,000,000 in the entire year of 1938.

One Laggard Listed.

Construction men feared the slackening of public expenditures with the death of the PWA, but the loosening of corporate purse strings has gone far to fill the gap. Since June 30, awards for public construction have fallen about $170,000,000, but private contracts have speeded up by approximately the same amount.

Commercial building, which in boom years accounted for more than 40 per cent of total engineering construction, has been a laggard in current revival.

This is the field which must pick up, building experts contend, if private capital is to regain its place as the principal support of the construction industry. From 1925 through 1930 annual commercial construction exceeded $1,000,000,000 every year and totaled $1,700,000,000 in 1929.

Rails Outlook Brighter.

In Birmingham, where the steel business is the core of the southern steel center's industrial life, steel operations have advanced from 70 per cent of capacity at the outbreak of the European war to 94 per cent.

The Birmingham Chamber of Commerce estimates approximately 15,000 jobs in all industries have been created by the upswing and the WPA waiting list continued favorable business in October was more than sufficient to put them in the black. With profits practically assured for November and December, they expect the carriers not only to offset their losses, but also to earn a substantial profit.

After six consecutive money losing months, the business upturn gave the carriers a net income after fixed charges of nearly $6,500,000 in July. This increased to $10,053,000 in August and $14,078,000 in September.

The Class I railroads ended 1938 with a deficit of $123,471,074 after running behind $180,021,193 in the first six months, compared with this year's six-month deficit of $91,765,684.

Frogs were reported in 1935, 1936 and 1937, and losses in the three preceding years.

Dress in Which Atlantan Will Step Back to Yesteryear

The Atlanta debutante or unmarried Junior Leaguer whose measurements approximate those of Vivien Leigh, will wear this dress of Scarlett O'Hara's to the Junior League's "Gone With the Wind" ball the night of December 14. The dress is made of white muslin with a light green sprigged figure woven into the material. The skirt is extremely full, billowing out from a tiny waist emphasized by a girdle of dark green velvet. In this scene from David O. Selznick's "Gone With the Wind" Vivien Leigh wears the described dress and she is shown with the Tarleton boys.

ROOSEVELT HOPES FOR SPRING PEACE

Ann felt better than she did at the beginning of the dinner because someone—he thought it was "Tommy" Qualters, his personal bodyguard—had told her she was going to have the neck of the turkey. She was worried until "the real thing" came to the table, he added.

Ann, dressed in blue, with a wisp of pink ribbon in her hair, smiled up at the President.

He recalled the early days of his visits to the foundation, how it grew, and how a spirit had grown up with the place. That spirit of human relationships, he said, has come to be recognized by many doctors as a factor in healing.

Just before he finished his short, extemporaneous address, the chief executive worked in one additional reference to peace and war. He waved a sheaf of telegrams, some of them from cabinet members, senators, congressmen, governors of many states, including Georgia.

He singled out one which he said he believed was from a girl who used to be at the foundation. He read:

"Here's to our national birds, the eagle and the turkey. May the one give us peace in all our states and the other a pie for all our plates."

After the dinner there was a play by a cast of patients and music by a negro quartet from Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.

Mr. Roosevelt had talked of the fight against infantile paralysis as a comparatively new one. He said even some of the older persons present might be surprised to learn that 50 years ago practically nothing was being done in the United States to help crippled people use their arms and legs again.

There have been a tremendous change in the attitude of the people toward certain types of human affliction and tremendous strides in medical care, he asserted.

Foundation's Spirit.

Here at Warm Springs, he said, something was discovered that was not known to the rest of the country generally. He said it was embodied in the spirit of the foundation, and in the fact that human relationships were related to science and medicine.

"Some of us have seen very wonderful modern hospitals," the President said. "But somehow when one had gone through such an institution, one comes away feeling it's all mechanized and doesn't take into account human relationships.

Here at Warm Springs, because of national support, we have built up a mechanically perfect place. That is all to the good.

"Yet, I'd hate to see Warm Springs go on in the days to come without the spirit of Warm Springs. The fact is, we are all part of a family, getting well not only in legs and arms, but also helping our minds in relationship to the minds around us."

Patients Cheerful.

The faces of most of the patients were cheerful as they caught and reflected some of the exuberance of the occasion. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt were in informal evening dress, and many of the diners were in dinner dresses.

Pumpkin coaches drawn by miniature turkeys and cornucopias spilling over with fruits and vegetables decorated the tables.

The patients sat at the President's table, having won their places by drawing lots, and for them the President carved turkey.

The chief executive had worked up an appetite for the repast by a swim in the Foundation pool and a drive through the crisp air of a bright fall day.

White House attaches said the President had no official callers, and that they were not bothering him with routine business affairs.

Mr. Roosevelt took his swim before noon. After lunch he took the wheel of his light touring car tests which approximate those of Vivien Leigh will be verified by the measuring committee and turned over to the judges.

When all the girls eligible for the honor have been measured, the judges will take the blanks containing their measurements and compare them with those of Miss Leigh on the slip in the safe.

The names of the judges, who have no association with either the Junior League or the Debantes Club, will be announced later in The Constitution.

The girl whose measurements most nearly approximate those of Miss Leigh will be declared winner by these judges.

And though the prospect of wearing one of Scarlett's dresses which Vivien Leigh wears in the film and the opportunity to dance with Clark Gable will be exciting enough, the real thrill will come on the night of December 14, when, as a real life Scarlett, the lucky winner will waltz onto the dance floor to the sweet strains of the music of old Dixie.

This fortunate Atlanta girl will be the partner of Rhett Butler in the person of Clark Gable, while the eyes of thousands follow her and batteries of newspaper and movie cameras click.

For that one night, the winner—as was Scarlett O'Hara at that mythical ball three quarters of a century ago—will be the cynosure of all eyes.

Not since the days of that famous Atlanta ball of 1863: not since the advancing army of Sherman put an end forever to the glories of that era, has Atlanta staged an event in sheer brilliance will equal the Junior League Charity Ball on that night of December 14.

The stage is set; the scene is about to be enacted. Who is the girl from among the unmarried Junior Leagues and debutantes who is to occupy the spotlight?

Pro-Allies Leader Forms New Rumanian Government

Cabinet Resigns When Nazi Demands Are Rejected; London Hails Appointment of Former Envoy to France as Sharp Rebuff to Hitler.

BUCHAREST, Friday, Nov. 24. (UPI)—George Tătărescu, pro-Fascist Rumanian political leader, today organized a new government to replace the cabinet of Premier Constantin Argetoianu which resigned yesterday after a majority of the ministers rejected Germany's reported demands for a virtual monopoly over Rumania's oil and raw materials exports.

Tătărescu, a former premier and ambassador to France until recently, is known as "the man with the iron fist" because of his strong methods against the pro-Nazi Iron Guard which has assassinated two premiers in seven years.

NAZIS TAKE PLANTS OF EX-BENEFICATOR

Ruhr Steel Mills of Fritz Thyssen Confiscated by Government.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The Ruhr steel mills and other property of Fritz Thyssen, once a Nazi party benefactor and now an emigrant to Switzerland, have been confiscated by the state, it was learned from good authority tonight.

On the outs now with the Nazis, Thyssen, who is 66, left Germany in August as his steel plants were running full blast producing for the war that was to start September 1.

Thyssen, who inherited a fortune from his father, August, and who ranked with Krupp in the big industry of the Reich, rendered Adolf Hitler a big service in 1931 when he brought the Nazi Führer, then struggling for power, into touch with a number of important Rhineland industrialists.

was expected here to increase the prestige of Rumania in London, Paris, Ankara, and other capitals friendly to the Allies. It was doubted that Germany would venture or threaten any military action.

The premier-designate said early today that he had virtually completed his cabinet list and it was understood the new government would be sworn in sometime during the morning.

The most important change in the new cabinet is expected to be the selection of Dimitri Constantinescu, minister of finance under Argetoianu and president of the National Bank, to the post of minister of economy, replacing Ion Bujoi, who resigned Wednesday.

NAZIS WANT CHEAP SUPPLIES

BUCHAREST, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Refusal by the Rumanian government to accede to German demands for increased shipments of oil and foodstuffs at lower prices caused the cabinet to resign today.

The cabinet, headed by Premier Constantine Argetoianu since September 28, resigned as a German mission sped homeward with the government's rejection of new trade proposals.

Germany, it was reported, asked increase of the exchange rate from 41.5 Rumanian lei to 60 lei for each mark. (In American money, such an exchange would have raised the mark's purchasing power in Rumania from 30.3 cents to 43.8 cents). It was understood Germany also asked the use of Rumanian tank cars for rail shipments of oil into Germany.

Some observers said they saw a possible connection between Rumania's attitude toward the Reich and recent shipments of British airplanes and tanks to this country.

Italy 'Aims' for 'Pay-Off' From War, White Is Told

By WILLIAM L. WHITE,
Special Correspondent.

ROME, Italy (Air Mail)—It was a beautiful, sunny, crisp day and we were walking under the palms down the Via Vittorio Veneto.

"But I tell you they weren't ready, these people!"

" Didn't they have an army last September?"

"Yes, but they have no heavy artillery to speak of. And their antiaircraft is the worst—still in the pop-gun stage. It won't knock down pigeons."

"But they have a fleet."

"The best submarines in the world. They could have chased the British out of the Mediterranean—that was before the British bagged the Turks with a treaty—but what good would that have done?"

"Because the French could have come storming down out of the Alps and chased them over the Pyrenees in a month—out of all their big industrial towns—the French have plenty of heavy guns."

"What are they doing about it?"

"Holding back on letting her have raw materials. Watching her. All the diplomats are trying to ride horseback with Ciano—at the seashore they bribe the bath attendant to get a locker near to him. Then the British are watching the Brenner—checking every box car that goes through to see just what Italy is sending the Germans and just what Hitler is letting Italy have. I suppose the Germans are doing the same at the ports. Neither side wants to let her have coal and steel to make guns if the guns will be used against them. But both are afraid to get too tough about it now, for fear Italy will get sore."

"But the Italians would really rather stay out?"

"It's a pretty country," he said. "The Italians like it. They don't want to get it all busted up in a war, if someone will pay them to stay out."

against which we cannot be attacked."

The eyewitness accounts of the sowing of the "balloon mines" from the air, mostly at night, seemed to explain the recent night raids over British coastal areas by German bombing planes which made no efforts to drop bombs.

In a flight up the Thames estuary Tuesday night—when a German plane was shot down by British fire—two Nazi seaplanes were said to have skimmed only 40 or 50 feet above the water and dropped "balloon mines." One of the mines was sighted and exploded by rifle fire, sending up a 100-foot high geyser of water.

Parachutes Check Fall.

Experts said they believed the parachutes dropped from the planes dissolved in the water, permitting the mines to sink. The parachutes presumably were designed, they said, to prevent damage to the delicate mechanism of the mines.

Geoffrey Shakespeare, parliamentary secretary of the admiralty, announced in the house of commons today that 15 German mines had been washed ashore along the English coast last night alone but he did not reveal whether any of them appeared to be new "balloon" type.

The "balloon" mines, according to naval experts, are an extension of Germany's mine warfare inasmuch as the British claim proof that U-boats have been laying magnetic mines in violation of international law.

Naval authorities refused to be alarmed by the startling disclosure, despite the steady increase in loss of ships and lives, and said that Britain and France can be expected to take "appropriate counter-measures."

Some quarters believed that German flying boats with a range of 5,000 miles or more and fully loaded with mines might be making rendezvous with U-boats far from regular shipping lanes.

It was noted that the "balloon" mines probably weigh about 500 pounds and that a seaplane would be able to carry no more than three or four of them.

There is a possibility, it was said, that the "balloon" mines are magnetically controlled, sinking to the bottom after the parachutes dissolve and being detonated by

PAROLES DECREASE IN LAST TWO YEARS

Boykin Gets Letter From Rainey To Correct Erroneous Criticism.

Fewer paroles have been directed in 1938 and in 1939, than in five of the six preceding years, Judge Clem R. Rainey, chairman of the State Prison and Parole Commission, pointed out yesterday in a letter to Solicitor General John A. Boykin.

Judge Rainey wrote:

"I have written to you to correct erroneous criticisms made of this commission, and have endeavored in the most cordial good spirits to clarify in your mind matters respecting the commission."

Rainey then explained that today the paroles granted by the commission include both those granted at the will of the commission, and those granted following the expiration of the minimum sentence.

Before February 15, of 1938, he said, the statutory releases were of an automatic nature. No record of such releases was sent to the office of the clerk of superior court. Since February 15, 1938, he explained, all paroles have been passed upon by the commission and a record of both types has been sent to the office of the clerk of superior court. As a result, the figures in the clerk's office for the past two years represent both statutory and discretionary paroles, while those for the earlier years, represent only the discretionary group.

19 NAZI WARPLANES ARE SHOT DOWN

awaits an official exchange of notes.)

One of the planes brought down by the British today was in a dogfight over the Champagne region. The three occupants of the German craft jumped; one was injured in landing by parachute, another was killed and the third was found to have been wounded.

Although increased air penetration of France by German planes was noted, military sources said the flights were for scouting purposes only.

These sources said three planes took part in a flight over the Paris region early this morning, which caused an air raid alarm and much anti-aircraft shooting.

(Germans declared they had shown marked superiority in air battles yesterday in scouting northwestern France. They said the enemy lost five planes to the Germans' one in six encounters over the western front, while a second plane was lost at Freiburg.)

Why don't you join the "regulars"? Today no one needs to suffer from constipation due to lack of "bulk." You don't need to endure it first and then try to cure it with "quick relief." The modern way is to prevent the trouble with this delicious, crunchy, ready-to-eat cereal—KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Eat it regularly with milk or cream, and drink plenty of water. But be sure you get the genuine All-Bran. Look for the red Kellogg signature on the package. ALL-BRAN is made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

City Departments Ask Million More for 1940 Operations

But West Says Probably Only $150,000 More Will Be Available To Meet Additional Budget Demands by 23 Municipal Offices; New Law Cited.

By HERMAN HANCOCK. Twenty-three optimistic municipal department heads yesterday sought an increase for 1940 of $1,094,388 over the 1939 city operating budget, but B. Graham West, city controller and member of the budget commission, said only about $150,000 probably will be available to meet the requests.

Bridge and underpass construction estimated at $556,000 led the list of new items. Demands included salary increases, salaries for new personnel and nearly half a million additional dollars for expansion of various city services. Budget Law Cited.

West's gloomy outlook for 1940 was based on two major considerations. Normally, the city budget is about $10,000,000 a year, and under the budget law, the municipal expense next year must be predicated on 98 per cent of the actual receipts of 1939 or about $9,800,000, making a $200,000 reduction necessary.

Thirty new policemen were added to the force in 1939, and their salaries, aggregating approximately $55,000 a year, must be provided for the entire year of 1940, and salaries, office supplies and other necessary operating expenses must be included for the newly established city personnel.

New Hair Styles Bring Withering, Aging Necks to the Front

Cream Preserves A Youthful Throatline

By Lillian Mae.

The high coiffure brought us face to face with the realization that necks just aren't what they should be. And whether or not you like it, the upward coiffure, either extreme or modified, is still with us. It's a change and women do like changes.

So what about your neck? Are you one of those persons who gaily went in for the style and even more quickly put your tresses down again because you found your neck too drab and dingy-looking? Well, don't give up hope.

There's a cream especially designed for neck and throat; for after all, you can stand a much richer and a heavier cream for your face. And in using the richer and stronger cream, you accomplish results more quickly. This rich, super-emollient supplies the extra lubrication for which the neglected area is simply crying.

Thoroughly cleanse and tone your skin, and you are ready to apply the cream generously over your entire neck and throat, circling your neck gently with your hands, moulding, pressing and smoothing, upward from the base of your throat. AND, don't forget that little portion of your skin behind your ears—that portion that was probably never exposed with the old hairdress, but which now is as prominent as your ears.

Now, take the famous beauty-angle position for 15 minutes. Lie with your feet at least a foot higher than your head and body. Put the pillows under your hips instead of your head, and your feet on the foot-board of your bed, or the back of a chair. This position stimulates circulation to the facial areas, bringing new blood supplies up to nourish your neck naturally from within, while you close your eyes in relaxation.

Neglected necks respond so graciously to this simple treatment that you'll be rewarded with a lovely neck in no time, and can go ahead without qualms in your favorite hair-dress with the knowledge that you are showing the world a beautiful, well-groomed throat and neck.

Woman's Quiz

Q. I was born in Canada to British subjects. When I was four years old my father died and my mother and I immigrated to the United States. When I was seven years old my mother married a citizen of the United States. She was married in June, 1922. What is our citizenship status?

A. Since your mother married a citizen of the United States before September 22, 1922, she automatically became a citizen of this country. As your father was dead you took the citizenship status of your mother; therefore when she became a citizen of the United States by reason of her second marriage you also became a citizen. You are eligible for a certificate of derivative citizenship.

Q. Does the label "pre-shrunk" guarantee that the garment will not shrink any further?

A. No; it merely means that some shrinking has taken place.

Q. What is the address of the National French War Brides Club? A. 12245 Abington road, Detroit, Mich.

New coiffures and low-cut evening dresses make a woman conscious of her neck, which can be smooth and lovely if she will apply a little time and a rich, heavy, quickly-effective throat cream. Joan Bennett has a smooth, youthful throatline, of which any woman would be proud.

Thin Girl Must Allot Herself One Hour Daily Out of Doors

By Ida Jean Kain.

What you thin girls want is more of the appearance of Venus in the vicinity of the chest and shoulders so that if you should wear one of those strapless evening gowns it will stay up! *

You can't depend entirely on the addition of pounds. You also need a better musculature and that calls for exercise—but don't get the idea that you are supposed to steam through a strenuous daily workout. That's the wrong way for you to go about your exercise.

Outdoor activity should be the backbone of your beauty program. If you could take up some winter sport (and why can't you!), it would do wonders. A couple of exhilarating hours in the crisp air would step up your vitality and vivacity and turn you into a much prettier girl. If you work for a living and such a large scale program is beyond you, allot your self at least one hour daily out of doors.

In addition to her outdoor program, the thin girl needs special exercises for posture and figure. Specifically, you probably need the type that will fill out the chest and throat and straighten the shoulders. For this, the pillow-pushing exercise is perfect:

Suspend a pillow in a doorway just slightly higher than chest level and then punch away rhythmically. This exercise is so much fun to do that you must be really not to overdo it! You should never exercise to the point of fatigue.

You also need special exercise to strengthen the abdominal muscles and to prevent the new weight from settling in this area, and the long sitting position is easy but effective.

Sit on the floor with the back against the wall, the legs together and straight out in front. Pull up with the lower abdominal muscles and press the small of the back firmly against the wall. Sit this way for two five-minute periods a day. This position improves the posture generally while strengthening the abdominal muscles.

The third specific exercise, sadly needed by the thin girl, is the type which strengthens the muscles and banishes the hollows along the inner thighs. One of the easiest and best exercises is to lie on the side on the floor, one hand braced in front of chest. Raise the upper leg sideways high in the air, hold for a second, and lower. Do the entire exercise very slowly and repeat for 10 counts. Relax, then perform with other hono-tricks.

Mere possession of the minimum amount of high-card tricks, however, does not always constitute a sound opening bid. Opening bidder should have some notion where he is going and should be prepared to rebid in the event partner enters the auction. Without a potential rebid in the hand, few opening bids are worth-while.

REQUIREMENTS ARE SAME.

Honor-trick requirements for sound opening one-suit bids are the same for any position at the table, vulnerable or not vulnerable.

Holding two and one-half honor tricks minimum, it is permissible to open the bidding provided you hold a rebiddable suit. With a suit only biddable once, three honor-tricks are required to open the bidding.

WHEN AND HOW.

Knowing when it is safe to bid is a matter of being able to count your honor cards correctly. Knowing how to bid depends on our knowledge of biddable and rebiddable suits.

A biddable suit can be named once without a raise from partner. A rebiddable suit can be bid twice without support from partner.

Any four-card suit is biddable once, when it contains two face-cards or better, as:

A K 4 3 K Q 4 3
A Q 5 4 K J 3 2
A J 7 5 Q J 7 4

Any five-card suit is biddable if it contains at least one face-card or better, as:

A 9 6 5 4 Q 7 6 5 4
K 7 6 4 3 J 8 6 5 3

Any six-card suit is biddable, as:

10 8 7 6 5 3
9 7 6 5 3 2
7 6 5 4 3 2

REBIDDABLE SUITS.

Only a solid four-card suit is rebiddable, as: A K Q J.

A five-card suit, containing any three honor-cards is rebiddable. A Q J 8 7 K Q J 5 3
A J 10 6 5 K Q 10 5 4
K J 10 3 2 K J 10 4 2

Any six-card suit is rebiddable. Step No. 1—Count your honor-tricks.

Step No. 2—Holding two and one-half honor-tricks open if holding a rebiddable suit. With only one biddable suit, three honor-tricks are required to open the bidding.

TODAY'S CHARM TIP.

Just a reminder for wives: "All of the things which make a woman attractive before marriage, keep her attractive after marriage."

Doctor Believes "Cold" Is Vicious Name for It

By Dr. William Brady.

From an extensive survey of illness throughout the country some years ago the United States Public Health Service Bureau concluded that respiratory infections account for three-fourths of the illnesses doctors treat. Bad "colds" as they are called by people of the lowest intelligence, "cri" (kré) as I and a slowly increasing number of others believe they should be called—until the course of the illness permits a specific diagnosis to be made.

What proportion of these common respiratory infections that keep the doctors busy if not prosperous—for doctor business, unlike other lines, goes up when income goes down or ceases altogether—is due to pneumococcus infection we can only estimate. My guess is that we may blame the ubiquitous pneumococcus for half of it. If you saw the article here the other day about the little boy who had acute earache, then dizziness, with fever, and pain in the neck when he tried to raise his head, you know how the pneumococcus may gain a foothold in the form of a slight sore throat or so-called "head cold," then find its way through the Eustachian tube into the middle ear, where it causes inflammation and pus-formation and thence invade the meninges (brain-covering membranes) and cause meningitis. So you never know in the early stages just what an alleged "simple cold" may turn out to be. Remember that when you consider how readily the cri spreads via conversational spray, for instance, as well as open-face sneezing or coughing.

Pneumococcus infection is responsible for ever so many sore throats, with tonsils, and for many cases of quinsy (abscess around the tonsil) too. Of course it is the common cause of pneumonia. In a considerable share of cases it is the main offense in acute bronchitis, and in not a few cases of acute pleurisy and empyema (abscess or pus-formation in pleural sac around the lung). It is an everyday cause of acute otitis media or inflammation of the middle ear, acute mastoiditis or inflammation of the air-space linings in the bone back of the ear, and in some such cases the infection finds its way into the brain covering membranes and cause meningitis. It begins nearly always as an apparently slight sore throat or acute rhinitis or head catarrh. In that stage few individuals give any serious consideration to precautions against spreading the infection, even if they realize vaguely that they are coming down with something probably communicable. They realize that only if they call it "cri," not if they call it "cold."

Cri means "common respiratory infection." Cri is an honest term; "cold" is a vicious term.

Slacks Costume Holds Its Own Despite New Fashion Demands

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—That lovely young songster, Deanna Durbin, has suddenly grown up, in her current Universal picture, "First Love." In this film, you see Deanna in the lovely new dress in which she is shown above. Of white net, the dress is threaded in silver to form a floral design. The basque waist is corded in front, giving a vest effect. The skirt full and flattering, tops a rustling taffeta slip of white.

Isa Miranda, Italian import to Hollywood, is one of our best "dressers" even though her career—so far—is not a success as it could be. She has a svelte figure, a Dior-like face. Both of which make a good "inside" for her new dinner suit of deep copper crepe. The skirt is wide and trails at the back. The transparent matching blouse of chiffon is embroidered in gold leaves. The hood on the jacket is detachable.

No matter how cluttered up the Hollywood fashion picture may get with bustles, peg-top skirts, and other new furbelows, the slacks costume goes on as strong as ever. A new version of this Hollywood originated style is seen in Miss Mirand's screen wardrobe. Design by Edith Head, the white corduroy slacks are comfortable and casual, with a tailored white crepe tuck-in blouse and a wide sash of vividly colored Rodier crepe.

Another chic item in the Miranda wardrobe—a trench coat of white gabardine, ideal for traveling during the cruise season. White leather buttons, antelope gloves and beret and a white jersey sports dress worn underneath complete the get-up.

And how do you like Isa's dinner pajamas, with silver embroidery highlights and a novel epaulette detail at the shoulders and front fastening. They have bishop sleeves and a wide, fringed sash.

Sable fashions a luxurious stole and hat combination for Muriel Angelus of Paramount. The stole is worn in various arrangements over a smart black frock. The hat is a pancake of bright green velvet with strips and a "topknot" of sable. The dark costume is relieved by a gold charm bracelet and Miss Angelus' bag is of pale, champagne-colored pigskin.

Standard favorites, navy and red, combine attractively for Ann Rutherford's winter slack suit. The slacks are high-waisted, with wide, cumberbund belt, the unpressed pleats giving the slacks a skirt-like appearance. Tucked in at the waistband, Miss Rutherford wears a crimson wool jersey crew-necked sweater and tops the two-piece outfit with a knee-length reefer in navy, double-breasted with brass buttons and lined with the bright red. Its detachable hood also has the red lining. Stitched red angora socks complete the ensemble.

Almost without exception a husband making a case against his wife comes to a full stop with the categorical statement that he's fed up, finished, that his love is as cold as winter mornasses and can't be reheated.

Once when commenting to a cynical lady on this big difference in masculine and feminine attitude toward marital disappointment, she suggested that a man wouldn't write in the first place unless he had already picked out mama's successor and merely wanted to ease his conscience a bit by confessing just before checking out. "In other words," she cried, "it's the old gamouous nature of the man cropping out and there's nothing to be done about it."

Maybe nothing can be done about the fires that have gone out. But there's plenty a wife can do to keep the fire burning on the marriage hearth and keep the husband purring contentedly in its warmth.

How to do it? Listen ladies: Hear what puts out the fire, according the most oft repeated charges dissatisfied husbands lodge against their wives. You'll be surprised to hear that only rarely does a man gripe about mama's cooking and cleaning, her getting fat, and losing her lines. Rarely does he beef about her extravagance or read her out for gallivanting. His dissatisfactions are deeper and much more personal than these things.

She nags, she pries, she weeps. There's no peace at home. She's jealous, suspicious, demanding, corrective, possessive. He can't please her. She cuts him down before people, is critical of him in private, doesn't give him credit for love said with support, but wants to be the perennial sweetheart although there's little left of her sweetheart, attitude toward him. And the one thing above all others that he harps on is her former good humor which has gone out like a light.

To hear the husband tell it, the principal thing they want of their wives is peace. Therefore I say whatever it costs a woman to give a man peace is a cheap price to pay. There's just one way to do it, incidentally, give him blanket approval of all he says and does. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Booklet Tells How To Make Perfumes

A romantic art is here again—the art of making delicious fragrances for the home and for oneself!

The fastidious lady of Victoria's day had this art at her finger tips and you will find it as fascinating as she did to concoct sweet bags, potpourris, incense, perfumes.

Many of the ingredients you can prepare at home if you like. But all may be bought from drug store, herbshop or chemist, and mixed according to simple formulas.

Like the breath of an old-fashioned garden is the sweet bag you make to hang in your linen closet or from your favorite chair.

One sweet bag recipe combines equal quantities of dried lavender and leaves of lemon verbena and rose geranium. Put the mixture into dainty, beribboned bags of chintz silk, or flowered cotton. Or make tiny bags to attach to Christmas cards.

A tempting luxury for your bath—a charming gift too—is bath potpourri. Here is a heavenly one! Mix together one pound of bergamot crystals, 1-2-3 ounces each of gum benzoin powder, rose-geranium leaves dried, sandalwood powder, patchouli leaves dried, 3 ounces orris powder, 2-2-3 ounces rose leaves dried.

Put the potpourri in silk bags with ribbon loops and as you run the hot water for your bath, hang a bag on the spigot so the water runs through the potpourri, acquiring its delicious fragrance.

And what more romantic than the odor of burning sandalwood incense? The recipe for it is in our new 40-page booklet, Perfumes and Household Fragrances to Make at Home. Gives complete directions and formulas for making all kinds of tempting perfumes, incense, potpourris, sweet bags, scented pads, pomanders, sachets, bath preparations. Tells the history of perfumes, lists places where ingredients can be obtained.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird Will Visit Here To Attend Ball and Premiere

By Sally Forth.

ALL ROADS lead toward Atlanta on December 14 to attend the Junior League's "Gone With the Wind" costume ball and the prominent persons coming to the city for these auspicious occasions are the names of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bird, those former Atlantans, who moved to San Antonio several years ago.

They will visit Cornelia and Oliver Healey at their Vernon road residence, and will receive cordial welcome from their host of admiring friends. Since moving from Atlanta, Mr. and Mrs. Bird purchased a ranch at Boerne, Texas, which is named the "Los Pa Jaro Ranch" and is located some 16 miles from San Antonio.

Other important visitors expected in Atlanta for these two world-famous events are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jones, who will come up from Sea Island Beach. They too, just like Mr. and Mrs. Bird, are exceedingly popular with Atlanta socialites and by their gracious presence and engaging personality, will add quite a great deal of glamour to two very glamorous affairs.

AMONG the most interesting gaieties looming on the social horizon is the dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. C. Robert Mitchell will entertain on the evening of December 4, for Ruthanna Butters and Selma and Beck Wight, popular members of the current debutante club.

The scene of the affair will be the new and very beautiful room at the Capital City Club, which opens the latter part of this month. The party is eagerly anticipated, for it marks the first to be given in the new room for debutantes. Twelve guests will be invited for 8:30 o'clock.

WHEN Mrs. Malcolm Tarver Jr. entertained recently at her home in Dalton for bride-elect Dorothea Blackshear, she sustained her reputation for originality and artistry in her table decorations. You see, Dorothea was maid of honor for the former Eldredge Grove, of Atlanta, when she became the bride of Malcolm Tarver, and Eldredge, in turn, will act as matron of honor when Dorothea weds Frank Brady Jr. on November 30.

When the luncheon guests glimpsed Eldredge's table, they saw miniature figures of themselves as they will appear in the Blackshear-Brady wedding. At Dorothea's place was a doll dressed as a bride after the manner in which the honor guest will be gowned at her forthcoming wedding. And she wore for a veil a bit of the illusion tulle which formed the hostess' wedding veil. The doll bride carried a bouquet of valley roses.

Marking the places of the other guests who were Dorothea's bridesmaids were dolls wearing replicas of their costumes for next Thursday's wedding and in the exact colors they have chosen. Their flowers were bouquets of button chrysanthemums.

Additional Atlanta guests at the luncheon were Dorothea's mother and sister, Mrs. P. L. Blackshear and Elizabeth Blackshear.

"NO WONDER," the gelding belonging to Pat Schoen, will make its debut in the show ring tomorrow when its owner rides to aid the Rabun Gap school in a benefit horse show at North Fulton park sponsored by the Rabun Gap Guild.

Pat, who is the daughter of Gabriel and Evelyn Hirsch Schoen, has been riding since she was five years old and is a well-known figure in horse show circles, having ridden to victory on many occasions. Sally wagers that when she appears in the ring tomorrow on "No Wonder," she will add more laurels to her crown of victory.

Rebekah Lodges To Give Benefit.

The third division of Rebekah lodges will sponsor a benefit entertainment this evening in the Red Men's wigwam, 160 Central Avenue, S. W., at 8 o'clock. Tickets

All in the Game
-by Jack Troy-

It may not be funny, McGee, but the hands have been uniformly poor for the opposition since Auburn's Deal.

There doesn't seem to be a joker in the Auburn deck now. When there was it had a way of popping out in the most unexpected places. For instance, in the Manhattan game.

Auburn physically wasn't ready for Tulane and was not able to match the last half drive of Georgia Tech. But the joker popped out against Manhattan. Losing to the Jaspers was a ghastly mistake.

But the deck is in order now and it's really Auburn's Deal.

Villanova, beaten only twice in two years, can testify to that. So can L. S. U.

Deal, the fierce sophomore, seems to have supplied the driving force Auburn needed. Coach Meagher's Tigers suffered in the early games for want of a co-ordinated offense. But it seems to be all the little marine could desire now.

And it has taken the play of a reformed tackle, who was given no mention in the pre-season advance dope, to lead the charge.

Rufus Deal has given Auburn a new deal in the current football season, which has had its ups and downs for the gallant Plainmen, but mostly of late has featured ups.

And the mystery surrounding the Auburn team in many minds is now clearing up. Georgia Tech players, for instance, could not figure how a team like Auburn could suffer such bad luck.

As one Yellow Jacket expressed it, "I am glad to see Auburn winning now. It relieves my mind. A team that blocks as hard as those Tigers do is entitled to win some games."

SUPREME EFFORT REQUIRED.

For Georgia to match the speed and smoothness of the now-clicking Plainsmen, a supreme effort would be required when the teams meet Saturday at Columbus.

The Bulldogs undoubtedly showed an improving co-ordination of offense against South Carolina, but it is well known by now that the Gamecocks are having one of those years.

The boys themselves are probably not putting too much stock into that rather impressive looking victory. Any year, at this stage of the season, Auburn is tough. And the Tigers now seem to be particularly difficult to get along with since there is a lot of slack of early season to be caught up.

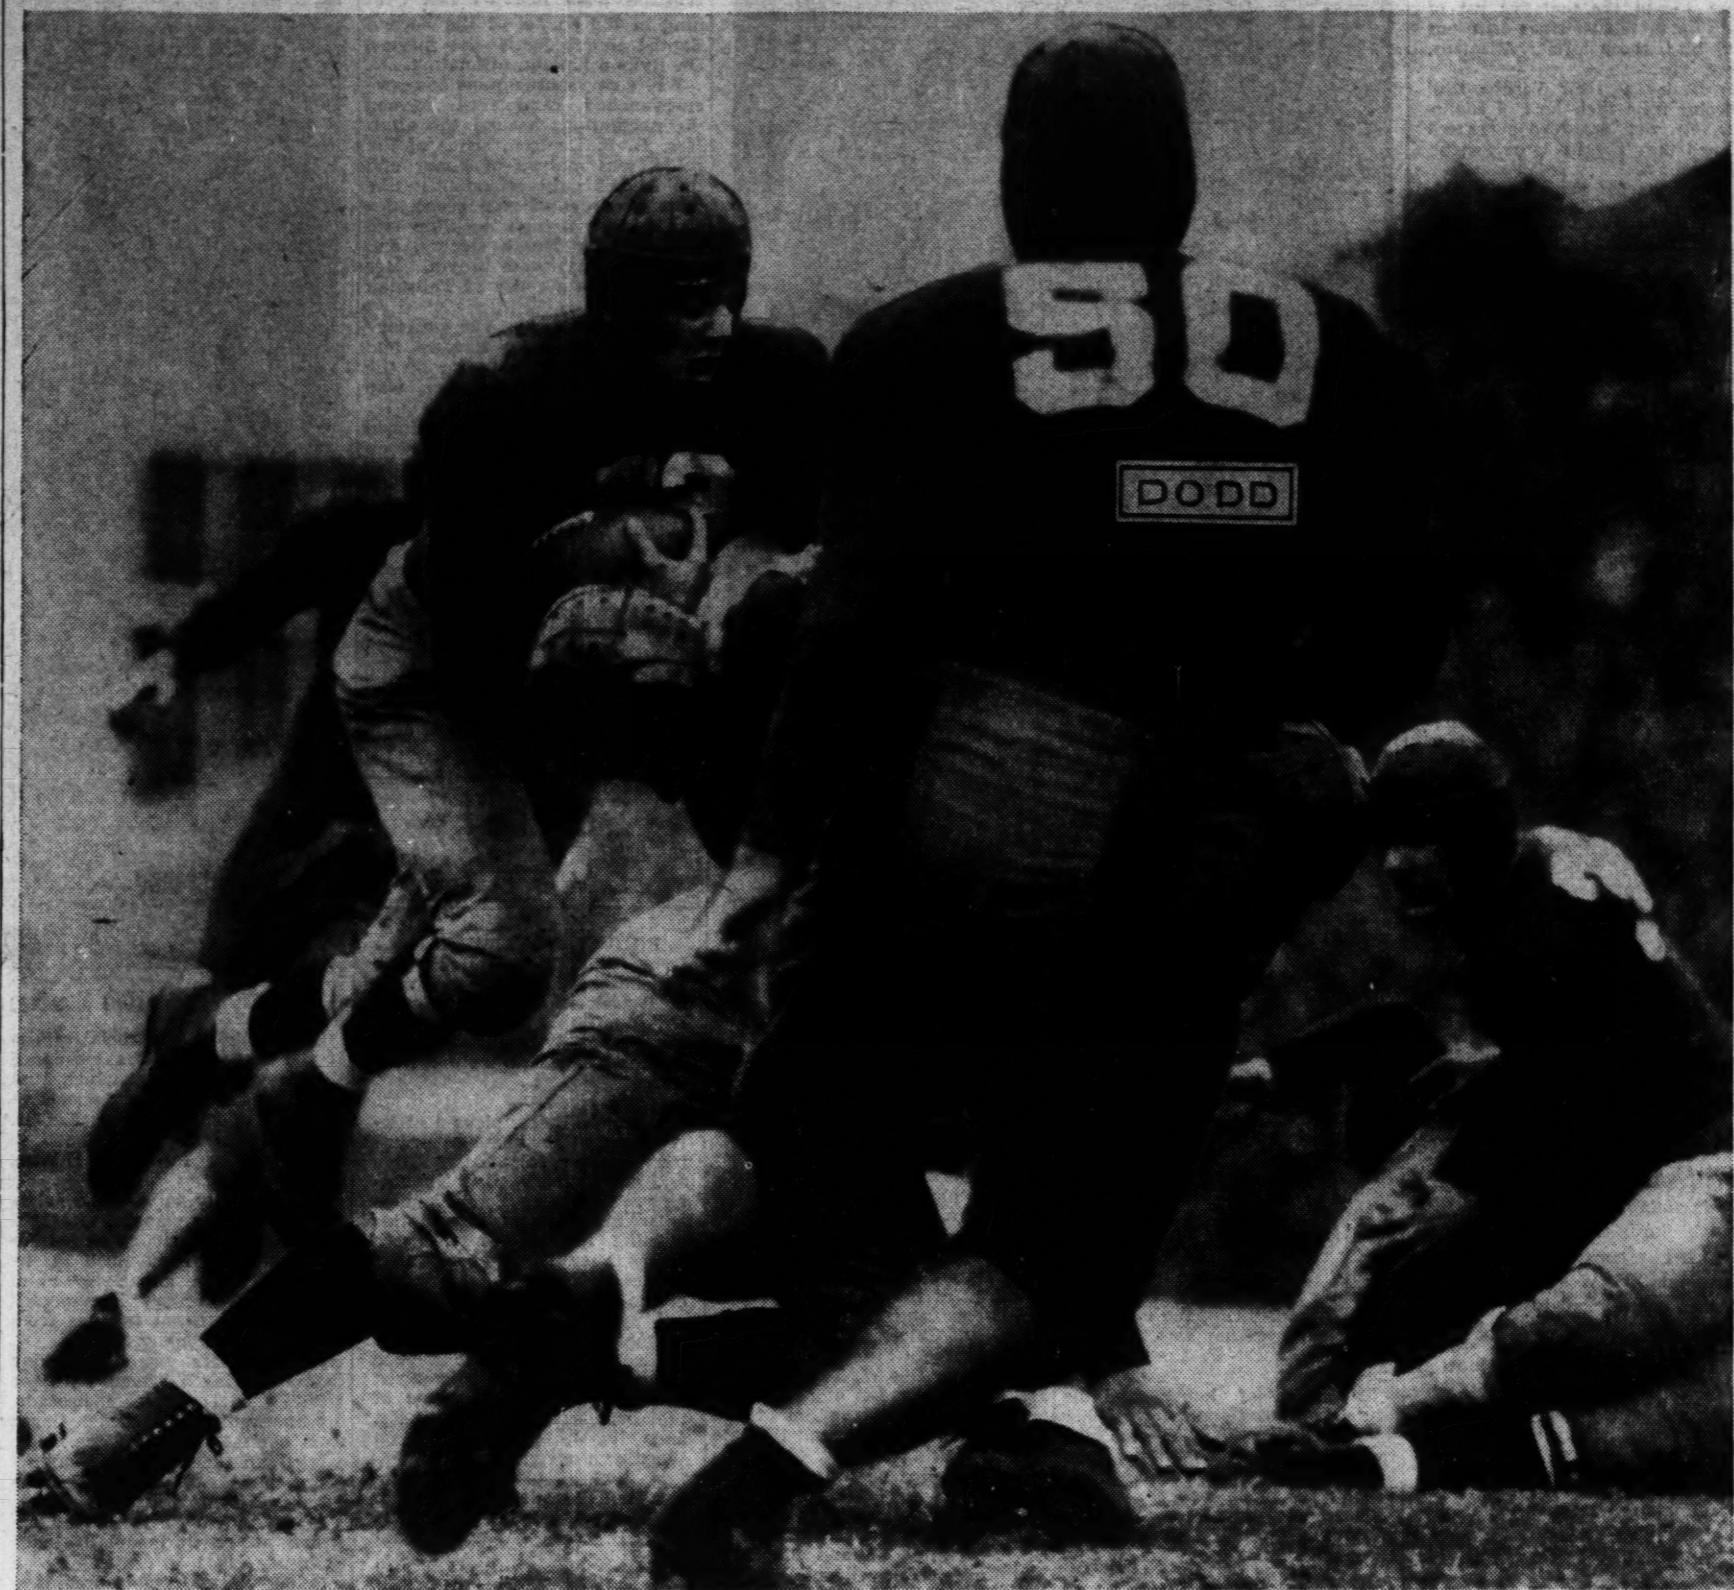

The game finds both elevens on an upsurge, however, and a real thriller is in prospect. Georgia has reeled off three victories in a row. Auburn has turned in notable wins over Villanova and L. S. U. in the last two outings.

Fact is, Auburn defeated L. S. U. just as handily as did Tennessee. The first Auburn touchdown was an exhibition of sheer power. The Tigers marched to goal in 18 plays, never once resorting to a pass. The aforementioned Rufus Deal tooted the ball for an average of better than six yards a carry.

V. M. I. DEFEATS VA. TECH, 19 TO 7

Cadets Score Twice Rapidly in Third-Quarter Attack.

ROANOKE, Va., Nov. 23.—(UPI) Two quick third-period touchdowns gave Virginia Military Institute a 19-7 victory over Virginia Tech today in the 37th renewal of Virginia's military classic. A Thanksgiving Day crowd of 20,000 saw the game.

The Cadets of V. M. I. scored three minutes after the game opened when Captain Paul Shu raced 16 yards around right end. Ripper Walker, V. M. I. tackle, set up the score by recovering Demuro's fumble on the 16. Shu kicked point.

The Gobblers came back strong and played most of the second period in V. M. I. territory. Herb Thomas scored from the three midway of the period on a baffling double reverse after Rankin Hudson had passed from the V. M. I. 46 to End Bob Lawson on the four. Rose added the point from placement.

A short quick kick which Bosh Pritchard returned to Tech's 27 set up the Cadets' second score. Pritchard passed from the 24 to Nelson Catlett who stepped across the goal line for the score. Shu's placement was wide.

V. M. I.'s final score came on a "combination" 65-yard run. Catlett tossed an 11-yard pass to Shu who ran to midfield and handed the ball to Pritchard. Pritchard raced 50 yards for the score. Shu's placement missed.

V. M. I. bested Tech, 104 to 71 yards, in rushing. A threatening aerial attack in the final half gave Tech 189 yards to 79 from passing. V. M. I. led in the first down, 10 to 4.

Brilliance of Sinkwich Makes Bulldogs Happy

Todd Passes Well; Blanton Shines; Dodd, Carden Star for Baby Jackets.

By JACK TROY.

This Georgia supporter evidently was pretty happy about the performance he had just witnessed. He was humming softly as he left Grant field with the cushions bursting in the air.

"Night and day you are the one," was the theme of his happy song. He had seen Frank Sinkwich, of Youngstown, Ohio, run by day and by night in one of the outstanding exhibitions seen on Grant field in many a year.

Sinkwich looked great in the day time. He is the fastest-breaking runner a Georgia freshman team has had in modern years. And he looked equally well after they turned on the lights.

THAT MAN.

That announcer pressed into duty for the charity game was so enraptured by the all-around play of Sinkwich that he continually referred to him as "that man."

The announcer was pretty cute. But he missed one line in his rapid-fire comment which swung from "commercials" back to the game, back to commercials, thence to the scoreboard, to the stands and here, there and everywhere.

He never thought of telling the crowd of over 21,000 — largest crowd ever to witness a freshman game in the south—that "the Tech ball carrier just struck an iceberg."

The Georgia freshmen were just as good as they have been pictured. But they scored only 33 points. They are the "half-a-point-a-minute-men" now.

It was indicated that the Bullpups are 40 points better than the current Tech freshman team, but they didn't get around to scoring but five touchdowns. So the Barons of Candler Hall are perhaps a trifle barren financially.

Jim Todd, who grew up around the marshes of Glynn, is the finest long-distance passer seen at Grant field in many a season. Todd once wound up and hit a receiver 51 yards away. It produced a quick touchdown. Another time he threw the football 50 yards in the air only to have it fall incomplete.

TODD GOOD.

Todd also is a good runner. He and Sinkwich and Brooker Blanton were standouts on the Georgia side.

Bobby Dodd, no relation to the Tech varsity backfield coach; J. C. Bradford and Wilbur Stein were offensive and defensive leaders among the Jacket backs, while Paul Page was a standout at end.

Looking back, it may be that the non-partisan spectator was right. He looked up from his seat high on the 5-yard line as the red-shirted giants swarmed on the field for the warm-up.

"Pardon me," he said, "I must be in the wrong stadium. Who is Alabama playing here today?"

That just about fit the big Bullpups. If there is a larger freshman squad, physically, in the south today, the players must be

SINKWICH LEADS GEORGIA ATTACK IN GREAT GAME

Bullpups Score in Every Quarter Against Game Tech Team.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Georgia's half-a-point-a-minute Bullpups, led by a prancing Mercury-heeled tailback named Frankie Sinkwich, trounced the Tech freshmen, 33 to 0, yesterday before a record crowd of some 21,000 fans at Grant field.

The game was the seventh in a series played for the benefit of the Scottish Rite hospital.

Flame seemed to spurt from Sinkwich's nostrils as he led a host of red-shirted huskies through the battle with the greatest exhibition of individual running seen on old Grant field in many years. His defensive work from his side-back position was superb and he ran as if some unseen force was propelling his flying feet and twisting hips.

The largest crowd ever to see a freshman game in the south gasped with admiration at the exploits of the 185-pound Ohio boy and gave him a huge ovation each time he left the field.

The Bullpups completely outclassed the lighter Tech freshmen, who were never able to advance the ball past midfield and who were limited to five first downs—only two of them coming in a row.

BULLPUP SUBS.

Waves of Georgia substitutions wore down the Jackets, who fought gamely but hopelessly.

The Bullpups scored in every quarter. The first touchdown came in the early stages of the game and started when Harry Kuniansky, ex-Boys High star, pounced upon Jack Bradford's fumble on the Tech 30.

Brooker Blanton, Valdosta lad, hit the line for 11 and a first down on the 19. Blanton added 8 more on the next play and Andy Dudish bucked for a first down at the 7. Blanton was held for only a yard by Bill Carden and then passed incomplete to George Poschner. However, his next pass, a bullet

CHOCTAWS END PETREL SEASON

Nine Linemen, 4 Backs To Play Last Game for Oglethorpe.

Oglethorpe's Petrels will close one of their most successful seasons Saturday afternoon at Herrington field with Mississippi College as opponents.

Thirteen seniors will play their last game for Coach John Patrick and it appears as though the seniors will have a sad remembrance of the game, for Mississippi has lost only Loyola of New Orleans and tied Chattanooga.

The visitors defeated Mercer, one of their strongest opponents, 15-0, and will be favored to beat Oglethorpe.

Included among the graduates are nine who have been in the starting line-up most of the season, and are practically assured of opening berths Saturday.

Four of Coach John Patrick's five ends will finish. They are: Bob Mills, of Augusta; John Peters, of Albany; Bob Denning, of Fairburn, and Marvin Chesser, of

TYPIST POWER BEATS DECATUR IN FINAL, 33-13

Behind 19-0 at Half, Losers Score Twice in Third Period.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Using the crushing tactics of an army tank corps the heretofore much-buffed Commercial High grididers gave a rousing exhibition of ground power finally to grind into the dust of Ponce de Leon park a gallant, scrapping, black-shirted band of pass-catching wizards from Decatur High, and win a hard-fought "Democratic Thanksgiving" morning grid battle, 33-13. The game was the last for both teams.

The Typists struck with devastating power in the early minutes of the game. With Big Flash McFarland, head and shoulders bowed, running amuck like a bull in a china shop, being ably seconded by Gene Jones, George Najor, Charles Foster, and Gene Everett, who kept slashing through the small Black line for long gains, the Typists blasted over three touchdowns for a 19-0 half-time lead.

Bulldogs Rally.

With a rout in the offing the Bulldogs refused to be beaten. They came back to completely dominate play for three-fourths of the second half. With Ed Pierce's deadly passing arm heating the oval upfield to Dukehead, Broyles, Golding or Dewey Brown on almost every play the Decaturians marched for two third-period scores. The third march was halted on the Typists' 25.

Coach Rufus Godwin's frightened charges took charge again late in the fourth period, using powerhouse tactics to score a fourth touchdown on a 42-yard march. In the waning moments of the fray, Ed Pierce's last frantic aerial bomb backfired in his face when Gene Everett intercepted, and hot-footed it 70 yards for a Typist score.

In the winners' stout line it was Lamar Monroe, Junior Nash, Frank Maloff, Bill McGill and Sheridan Albright who stood out in particular.

MARIST BEATS LANIER, 12 TO 6

MACON, Ga., Nov. 23.—(P)—A band of Marist College opponents, outplayed on the ground, took advantage of two of several Lanier High school bobbles today to defeat the Poets, 12-6, here.

Midway of the second period, a Lanier punt was blocked and Lee, Marist guard, apparently cornered, caught the deflected ball and dashed 40 yards for the first score of the game.

A few minutes later, Dunham, of Lanier, fumbled on his own 15.

On the first play Holder passed to Davol who crossed the Lanier goal for the second Marist counter.

Lanier's only touchdown came in the last quarter when Dunham passed over the goal line to Muecke.

Ilen, Jim Fordham, Dooley Matthews, Oliver Hunnicut and Bob Salisbury to send out against Auburn's Deal, George Kenmore, Dick McGowan, Billy Mims, Carl Happer and Charles Haynesworth.

The two lines may prove stand-offs. Few heat Georgia's for down-right determination. Hence, it may evolve into one of the fiercest games of the long series.

Auburn will take the field as the favorite.

STERN TEST IN 'GATORLAND.'

Georgia Tech rides south to meet a stern test in Gainesville, Fla., home of the Florida 'Gators.'

The odds say Tech is a prohibitive favorite and all that. But a strong defensive team such as Florida, playing in the infectious atmosphere of home-coming, can play havoc with the best laid plans.

It was no small feat. That is, the performance of Florida in holding a strong Miami University team to minus five yards in rushing.

The national record will show that Florida rates very high on defense, both against ground plays and against a passing attack.

Furthermore, as has been pointed out before, the 'Gators should have a rather clear picture of the Tech offense. Sam McAllister has been on hand at virtually every Tech game.

Georgia Tech's players have the incentive of keeping their conference record unfurnished, but they cannot possibly have the incentive in meeting Florida that they did in meeting Alabama, which was the "enemy."

It's a difficult job keying them up again for this Saturday's game. And it will take more than an ordinary Tech performance to stay in the race for conference honors.

The Jackets should win, but the teams may be no more than a touchdown apart at the finish. Loss of dependable Eston Lackey, senior tackle, and Billy Gibson, who won't be in uniform either because of an injured knee, cripples Tech.

Gibson will be ready for the Georgia game, but there seems to be some question as to whether Lackey's knee will come around in time.

"SLUG" PRAISES AGGIES.

Paul (the Slug) Richards, talented young manager of the Atlanta Crackers, writes from his home in Waxahachie, Texas, praising the Texas Aggies.

"No doubt," Richards writes, "many fans would like to see Tennessee and A. & M. College collide January 1 in a Bowl game. So would I. That should be a great battle. I think the Aggies are slightly better than T. C. U. At least the Aggies do not have to have a dry field to score. T. C. U. depends on passes too much. The Aggies have a good passing attack to mix with a charging, blocking backfield. Big John Kimbrough is one of the toughest football players I've ever seen. A raw-boned 210-pounder from Haskell, Texas, heart of the cow country. In the T. C. U. game the stretcher came after each Froggie who dared to tackle the big bruiser after he got by the line of scrimmage."

Richards disclosed that he is coming to Atlanta early next week in order to get together with President Mann on plans for the National minor league meeting at Cincinnati, where the Crackers will do a lot of bartering for ball players.

"Right now," Richards added, "I am leaving for Alpine, Texas. Take a look at the map and see just where this place is. It is in the wild and woolly west. Land sells for about 50 cents an acre. Alpine rests in the center of the Davis mountains. A beautiful range which covers most of southwest Texas. This is the real McCoy in regards to cow country. The final haven for the old cattle rustlers on horse back. I am going to officiate a football game between a couple of college teams."

N. Fulton, Hapeville Play Scoreless Tie

Gordon 11 Upsets G.M.C. Team, 13-0

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 23.—(P)—The Gordon Military College Bulldogs observed the President's Thanksgiving Day this afternoon with a turkey trot through Georgia Military College for a 13-0 triumph, the state junior college championship and a claim to the national title.

It was the second victory in the series for Gordon during Dickie Butler's coaching regime, against one loss and two ties. Gordon and G. M. C. shared the state crown last year, playing to a 7-7 deadlock.

The margin of difference in the thriller played before more than 3,500 highly partisan spectators on Davenport field was Stanley Stacia, the glittering hero of the junior college conference this year, who ended a season of stardom with his most scintillating performance.

Held to less than two touchdowns for the first time in conference competition, Stacia danced and jiggled 28 yards through his right tackle for a second-period touchdown, gained 210 yards on 21 running plays and dominated the struggle the entire time he was in the game.

Smith, of Canton, and Johnny Moren, of South Bend, Ind., will wind up their pivot activity.

Martin Kelly, Atlanta, fullback; Elmer George, Stone Mountain, and Steve Schmidt, Gibbstown, N. J., halfbacks, of Griffin, likewise will end their active careers.

CITADEL WINS, 34-0.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 23.—(P)—The Citadel Light Brigade, trampled by some of the best football teams in the south this season, lashed out in all its aerial fury this afternoon and did some trampling of its own. Epskine was the victim, 34 to 0.

Trojan-Bruin Game May Break Record

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—(P)—Seventy-five thousand tickets have already been sold for the December 9 football game between the Trojans of Southern California and the Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Indications point to a duplication of the 1938 U. S. No. Dame-Duke battle in Memorial Coliseum here, when more than 100,000 packed the huge stadium.

Dobson, Ex-Jacket, To Quit Maryland

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(P)—Coach Frank M. Dobson, of Maryland University's football team, one of the best known mentors in this area, will resign his post tomorrow, authoritative sources said tonight.

Dobson came to Maryland in 1936 from Richmond University. During his first three years at Maryland, his teams won 21 games, tied two and lost nine. In the last two years, however, they lost 14 and won four.

Dobson also was a big league ballplayer, performing with the Pittsburgh Pirates off and on for four years.

FIELD GOAL WINS FOR ORANGE, 10-7

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 23.—(P)—Syracuse University, needing all of its vaunted fight, ended its golden jubilee football season today with a hard-won 10-to-7 victory over an inspired Maryland team before a Thanksgiving Day crowd of 5,000.

A nicely-placed field goal, booted in the first period by McPhail, Syracuse left end, proved the victory margin in a hectic and bruising game, and although Syracuse scored first, the Orangemen had to come from behind to win.

Little Joe Murphy, Maryland's Southern conference sprint star, dashed around his right end and on the second play of the second period, reversed his field and outran his interference and Syracuse tacklers for 59 yards to score standing up. Widener converted from placement, to put Maryland ahead, 7 to 3.

Score by periods:

Syracuse 3 0 7 0—10
Maryland 0 7 0 0—7

SOURDOUGHS WIN GOLD BOWL TILT

JUNEAU, Alaska, Nov. 23.—(P)—

An ambulance, Red Cross nurses and doctors were on the sidelines today as the continent's "bowl" season got under way.

The Alaska Sourdoughs football team defeated the Baranoff Bears, 6 to 0, in the first Gold Bowl game.

Mrs. Robert Bender, daughter of territorial Governor John Troy, dedicated the charity game as an annual affair by breaking a bottle of champagne on the goal posts.

Max Lewis, who said he played at various schools in the states, boomed over for the score shortly before the end of the first half. He is the son of Victor A. Lewis, sculptor whose Sourdough bronze is one of Seattle's better known monuments.

More than 60 players, the majority of whom were former gridironers in the states, made up the two teams, and substitutions were numerous.

About 500 persons witnessed the game.

Pine Bluff Beats G. M. A. Cadets, 14-7

Pine Bluff, Ark., led by Robert Huston, defeated G. M. A. 14 to 7, in a game played last night at the East Point High gridiron.

The Cadets' score came after Bankford intercepted an Arkansas pass and ran to the 4-yard line. Smoak carried the ball across.

Washington Upsets Oregon Team, 20-13

SEATTLE, Nov. 23.—(P)—

The University of Washington upset a highly favored University of Oregon football team today with a 20-13 Pacific Coast conference victory before 25,000 persons.

Washington outclassed the Oregon squad with a triple-offense that ripped through the defense with little opposition.

Jay Graybill scored all of Oregon's points in the final game of his collegiate gridiron career, raising his points scored to more than half of the Oregon total for the season.

The Cadets' score came after Bankford intercepted an Arkansas pass and ran to the 4-yard line. Smoak carried the ball across.

Richmond Is Upset By William & Mary

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 23.—(P)—

William and Mary struck quickly in the third period today with an 80-yard touchdown drive and spoiled the record of previously undefeated Richmond University, 7-0, before a Thanksgiving crowd of 18,000.

The Indians took the second-half kickoff on their own 20 and did not lose possession of the ball as they wormed their way to scoring position.

TAHAW WINS, 27-0.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 23.—(P)—

University of Utah swamped Utah State, 27 to 0, before 17,000 spectators today to remain in the running for at least a tie for the Big Seven conference champion.

Another of their weekly one-day tournaments will be played at 9 o'clock this morning on the Druid Hills course by the Druid Hills Women's Golf Association.

Both teams played fine defensive ball and checked each other's main threats without serious damage.

Hapeville exhibited one good offensive drive in the third quarter but was held down on downs by the five-yard line.

It was the second victory in the series for Gordon during Dickie Butler's coaching regime, against one loss and two ties. Gordon and G. M. C. shared the state crown last year, playing to a 7-7 deadlock.

The margin of difference in the thriller played before more than 3,500 highly partisan spectators on Davenport field was Stanley Stacia, the glittering hero of the junior college conference this year, who ended a season of stardom with his most scintillating performance.
